COLLECTING DEBTS IN FRANCE.

Points of Difference Between the System There and In This Country.

The matter practiced in the collection of debts in France and in the United States does not differ materially save in the collection and the mode of procedure. The first step which is necessary for a creditor in France to take before he can use legal means to collect a debt due him is to obtain judgment against the debtor, which is rendered by a justice of the peace, provided the amount does not exceed $40. The defendant is required to appear in court on a certain day and arrange for a settlement of the account and pay a part or the whole of it or show cause why.

If this arrangement is not made, the defendant is a second time summoned to appear, and should he then flatly refuse payment judgment is rendered against him. The cost of judgment, together with that of the summons, is defrayed by the plaintiff and a copy of the former sent to the debtor. He then has three months' grace to appeal before a civil court from the judgment already handed down. Failing to exercise this privilege, the matter is put in the hands of a "huissier," whose functions partake of those of both the bailiff and process server, but his methods as well as his perogatives resemble neither one nor the other. The huissier upon request of the creditor makes an abstract statement of the condition of the debt, the fee for preparing and serving the same varying according to the length of the instrument and not according to the importance of the debt. Its average cost, however, may be placed at $2.50.

In case the debtor ignores the document an "assignation" is served upon him, and eight days thereafter his furniture is seized and placed in the hands of the huissier. The expense entailed in the preparation of these notices is defrayed by the creditor, but if at any moment the debtor agrees to liquidate in full he is not only required by law to discharge his original obligation, but to add to it the costs of the judgment and fees of the huissier. Whether this system is better than the plan pursued in the United States is a matter of opinion.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Patti's Fairyland.

Craig-y-nos castle, situated at the base of "The Rock of Night," one of the many high hills which stretch away from the Brecon Beacons toward Swansea bay, from which the diva's home takes its name, appears to the weary and footsore traveler (to whom a hearty meal and ample rest is never denied) to be as an oasis amid the desert plains. Built in the center of a wildly romantic expanse of scenery and traversed by the Tawe, a bright little river which hurries seaward, babbling and rippling as it flows, the castle stands resplendent, with an almost regal air, commanding an impressive view of the broad valley and its picturesque surroundings.

To the left of the chateau are situated the conservatories, vineries, peachhouses, etc., and last, but not least, the magnificent winter garden, which has lately been erected and stocked with rare palms and Australian ferns. Here the diva takes her daily walk when fierce gales and drenching showers deter her from braving the elements. The castle and winter garden are brilliantly illuminated by electric light, so that the effect of the cattle at night, when viewed from the somber valley, is that of an enchanted palace situated in Fairyland. —Woman at Home.

Sewing In Public Schools.

The course of study in sewing in the Boston public schools is interesting for an amateur of sewing to consider. To read of "thimble, emery, scissors," set off neatly as articles of study, and to gaze upon a printed curriculum of "basting, backstitching, overcasting, half backstitching and combination of one running and one-half backstitch" is to realize most intensely the advantages Boston offers to her daughters. In the fourth year are taught, among other things, stocking darning, straight and bias felling, whipping and sewing on ruffles, hemstitching, blind stitching, tucking if not taught previously, gathers overhanded to a band, sewing on hooks and eyes and buttons, eyelets, loops, and in the fifth year there is a system of dress cutting by which girls are taught to take measures, draft, cut and fit a dress waist.—Boston Transcript.

Reputation.

The value of reputation is almost cynically set forth by the case of a young literary man whose rejected story came back to him from a great publishing house with a few words of praise qualified by the declaration that it showed traces of the amateur. Encouraged by this he set to work and produced a novel. This he sent to the same house, and it was accepted. It succeeded, and the young author soon afterward sold to the same publisher the rejected story at double the price he had originally asked.—New York Sun.

A Parasite.

Johnnie—What is a parasite, ma?

Mrs. Newlirich—Gracious! haven't they taught you that at school? It's a native of Paris, of course.—Raymond's Monthly.

The Snail.

He has no ground rent to pay, for he does not build his house upon any, and asks no better foundations for what he lives in than his own back. Being his own landlord, he is not liable for house rent, and when he is not inside them his apartments are unfurnished ones.

Where'er he dwells he dwells alone;
Except himself has chattels none,
Well satisfied to be his own
Whole treasure.

He is the despair of his creditors, for he has nothing to levy upon, and if the brokers seize his house they seize him, too, and he is none the worse, for he was at home as he was. Income tax collectors gnash their teeth over him, for if they assess him on his house property he walks out of it. It is his freehold only so long as he remains within.

Once outside it is nothing, a mere shell, and no heading in any schedule meets the case. This is why, no doubt, he sometimes leaves his lodgings and goes into others to baffle the commissioners and leave the lawyers to tax each other's costs at their own expense. Nor does he run up any bills.

He is his own hosier, hatter, tailor and shoemaker, and as for his food he takes it where he finds it. If the caterpillar tells him he has no right to eat the cabbage, the snail replies with a tu quoque, and if the earwig protests against his coming into the lettuce he asks it to show its title to possession.—Good Words.

A Simple Remedy.

I saw a crowd collected around a carriage in front of a doctor's office. Pushing my way into the crowd, I saw a very pale young man in the carriage suffering from nose bleed holding out the forefingers of each hand to a gentleman, evidently the physician, who was engaged in tying them together with a string placed around the last joint of each finger. I asked him if that would cure the nose bleed, and he answered curtly, "Yes!" I waited a few minutes and saw the cure effected. A few days later I tried the remedy on my office boy, who had a severe case of nose bleed, and it cured him almost immediately. I asked a regular physician about it, and he replied gruffly, "Hypnotism."

This I did not quite understand, but it set me thinking. One evening afterward a couple of young ladies, the daughters of my next door neighbor, who had been attending a church entertainment, returned home in a state of laughing hysteria—the "giggler" in Mrs. Jarley's waxworks had been too much for them. I was called in as a friend to see what could be done for them. It was no laughing matter, for they were having spells of fainting. I tied up their finger joints with strings, telling them that it would cure them, and it did.—Philadelphia Record.

The Facts the Other Way.

It has lately been stated that some years ago Prince Bismarck was anxious to induce the Duke of Edinburgh to surrender his right to the (Saxe-Coburg) succession in consideration of a pecuniary indemnity. This happens to be just the reverse of the truth. If Prince Bismarck had really entertained such a wish, the Duke of Edinburgh would practically have had no alternative but to acquiesce. As a matter of fact, however, it was Duke Alfred who desired to sell the reversionary interest of himself and his son, and in 1876 the queen went to Baden-Baden and had a conference with the old Emperor William in the hope of being able to arrange satisfactory terms. After a great deal of haggling the negotiations fell through because the duke stipulated for a sum paid down, whereas the German government would give him only a liberal annuity. But there was no anxiety at Berlin to conclude the transaction.—London Truth.

Russia and China.

It may be laid down as a safe general rule that any and every agreement made between China and Russia must be detrimental to the interests of China, for the simple reason that Russia always knows precisely what she is driving at, while China has never yet apprehended the true purport of any convention she has made with a foreign power, and usually discovers too late that her confidence in the magic power of phrases has been misplaced.

This is especially true of the treaties and protocols she has made with Russia during the past generation. They have been so many steps in the Russian advance, and such they are likely to continue.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Human Heart.

The human heart is a hollow muscle of a conical form, placed between the two lungs and inclosed in the pericardium or heart sac. The ordinary size of the heart in the adult is about 5 inches in length, 3½ inches in breadth at the broadest part and 2½ inches in thickness. Its weight is from 10 to 12 ounces in men, and from 8 to 10 ounces in women.—Leisure Moments.

Blowing It.

Mudge—I was just thinking of the resemblance between my salary and my breath.

Yabsley—How's that—all wind?

"No-o. Not that exactly. But as soon as I draw it I have to blow it."—Indianapolis Journal.

What Machinery Is Doing.

One of the astonishing facts in the field of industry is the marvelous power of machinery operated by hand. In the cotton trade, in 1850, the average product of every employee was something less than $700, while 30 years later he was able to produce a value of $1,200, notwithstanding the reduced price of cotton. In the woolen factory the change was much the same, the hand of each worker being able, as long ago as 1850, to make over $1,200 of product, and in 1880 about $1,800, the proportion of material consumed by improved machinery being about the same.

How much the world is indebted to invention cannot be stated in tangible form, but with the strength of man remaining the same and the skill of the present artisan, though showing some advances, still not distancing that of the ancient Egyptian, the vast increase of human resources is due mainly to the influence of invention in discovering ways in which machines can do the work of men. The competition is no longer a competition of skill of labor, but that of invention, and in America we are far in advance of any other nation in this respect. A man who 50 years ago could turn out a value equal to a scant wage, now, at fairly good wages, is able to bring into being four or five or six times the value.—Journal of Finance.

The Use of the Word "Ain't."

It would be immense relief if that dreadful Americanism, "ain't," could be given a rest for all eternity. You hear it so frequently. The few exceptions among well educated people scarcely make an impression with an observer on the lookout for the phrase. It is surprising how easily a fault in speech may be acquired by the ear, but in this part of the world, where our public schools are believed to really educate, it is as common to hear grammatical errors as in localities less intellectually favored. "I ain't, you ain't, he or she ain't, they ain't," is the unpleasant conjugation of what verb? "Ain't you going?" asks a well set up young person, who would be highly offended if her social status was questioned.

"Oh, I ain't had half of the party!" is another from younger lips, and the nice looking car conductor scares the life out of you by halloing: "Wait till the car stops! We ain't got there yet!" Purists will take no offense at this abuse of grammar if it saves their necks, but if any one would keep watch over his tongue as well and note the ain'ts that now afflict the American language that offensive and meaningless contraction and negation would be abolished, and even the primarily educated masses might say what they mean.—Kansas City Times.

The Near Sighted Professor.

Professor Wise is an absentminded man, yet so thoroughly genial and unaffected in his absentmindedness that it never occurs to any one to take offense at it.

It so happened that the professor arrived late one winter's afternoon in a small western town, intent upon visiting an old college chum whom he had not seen for many years. Arriving at the house he was shown immediately to his room, where he prepared himself for dinner before meeting his host s family.

When the various stains of travel were removed, he descended. The drawing room door was open, but the lights were not yet lighted. A bright fire was burning in the grate, and somebody's head was just visible over the top of a big chair in front of it. The professor is a bit near sighted, but he could see that there was some one in the chair. So he tiptoed softly up behind it and patted the occupant on the head.

"Hello!" he said. "Warming up your shins as you used to do."

And then his old chum's wife, whom he had never met before, rose out of the chair to greet him.—Boston Budget.

Astounding Ignorance.

At an inquest held at Bilston on the body of an aged paralyzed woman, who was burned to death while left alone in her house, it was stated that when the neighbors discovered her enveloped in flames and in front of the fire they made no effort to move her or extinguish the fire, as they thought they had no right to do so until policemen arrived. The coroner severely condemned such nonsensical views and instanced another case of ignorance where the life of a man who hanged himself might have been saved if he had been cut down when first observed. A verdict of accidental death was returned.—Pall Mall Budget.

A Pious Maiden.

Mlle. Jonjon visited one day a village church and began to sing with her usual enthusiasm. There was a powerful echo in the old church, and each sound that she uttered was distinctly repeated. This did not disturb her in the least, for she at once exclaimed, "It is only the good God who is answering me."—Paris Figaro.

How He Lived.

"Does anybody know what Blinkins' business is?

"Why, certainly; he's a loan agent."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; hasn't he struck you yet?"—Detroit Tribune.

A CHEERFUL RUFFIAN.

He Could Take a Joke as Readily as He Would Play One.

Among many famous characters who made men dance till they dropped or made them commit other queer antics, Curly Bill was probably the most picturesque. According to the stories told by P. H. Gale of Indro, Curly Bill was a most amiable and humorous ruffian and could take a joke as well as make one with ready cheerfulness.

"A green sort of chap walked into the saloon where we were all assembled," said Mr. Gale. "This was in Tombstone, you know, and no sooner did Curly Bill see him than he thought he would have some fun. Going up to this long, lank, slab-sided boy, Curly Bill said to him:

"'You'll just 'muse the gents by dancing.'

"Before you could say Jack Robinson that chap jumped clear onto the bar, and pulling out two six shooters pointed them at Curly Bill, saying: 'I'm just lookin for you. Now dance by ——!'

"Did Curly Bill dance? You bet yer life he did, and many a time has he told the story till the tears ran from his eyes with laughter. It wasn't safe to fool with Curly Bill. He was a peculiar kind of a chap, and if he didn't take a liking to your face or your clothes he'd as soon kill you as not. One day he went to a Frenchman, and gently tapping him with his six shooters observed:

"'Look a-here, you go and stand on that hill outside of town all night, and if I don't find you there in the morning I'll kill you, sure as you are born.'

"That Frenchman stood there all night, and when Curly Bill told him he might go he left not only the hill, but the town.

"The miners down at Tombstone had notions to which it was dangerous to run counter. They disliked the Mormons, and if a man was known to belong to that sect 10 chances to 1 he would never leave the camp alive.

"I remember a fellow coming into a barroom and yelling that he was a Mormon and could wipe out anybody. The bartender, a tender hearted sort of a chap, told him to be quiet. The fellow bawled again. In a flash a coil of rope was about his head, and he was being jerked to the ceiling. The barkeeper rushed out.

"'Gents,' said he, 'the man is drunk and don't know what he is saying. He ain't responsible.'

"The strain on the rope slackened, and the Mormon was dropped on the floor, where he lay in a senseless heap. His terrible escape had completely sobered him. When he came to, the barkeeper helped him to his feet and hid him.

"When the saloon was empty, he gave him this piece of good advice: 'For heaven's sake, get out of here! I can't answer for your life. These fellows may be back any moment and may have changed their minds. I don't want you to be hanged here, so get up and git, and while you are in this camp never say you are a Mormon.'"—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Mules Knew the Route.

A remarkable instance of the stubbornness with which mules retain ideas once impressed upon them was seen one day last week. A dairyman who for years had driven his team and served his 300 or more customers in Cincinnati personally, died suddenly before he could give his son a list of the customers. The latter, however, started the wagon to town at the usual hour the next day, with instructions to deliver milk wherever the team stopped.

The animals trotted along briskly till they reached Abigail street, where they pulled up in front of a grocery. A maid with a pitcher soon ran out, and taking the name and order the driver continued. He simply started the mules, letting them pick the route, and when they finally headed for home he found he had a list of over 300 customers. The mules had not only stopped at all the regular places, but, as was afterward learned, had regained several former customers who had changed milkmen recently, but who, pleased with the queer method of learning the route, again returned to the old milk.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Advertising Scheme at Niagara Falls.

"I read some time ago that signs projected by electric searchlights on the clouds over London would be a novel advertising idea," said an electrical engineer. "I've got a better one than that. Why not place electric searchlights on the Canadian side of Niagara falls and project advertising announcements on the American falls? The immense curtain of water would make a splendid background, and the rapidly falling water would produce novel effects on the signs. The trolley road now operating along the falls might utilize this scheme and give its patrons gigantic magic lantern shows on summer evenings."—Electrical Review.

Resuscitation.

At an inquest in a certain town in the north of England on a man who had been drowned the policeman giving his evidence was asked by the coroner if means had been taken to resuscitate the body.

"Oh, yes, sir! We searched his pockets."—London Tit-Bits.

THE LATE MRS. JOHNSON.

A Tribute to a Noble, Grand and Remarkable Woman.

Kate Johnson, who died near this place on the 3d instant, was a most remarkable woman. She would have been so in any age or country. The gifts and the graces of her mind, the charms of her manner, would have attracted attention in any court of ancient or modern Europe. In truth she was better qualified by gift and attainment to preside over royal households than many even of the great historical women whom birth, chance, destiny or ability placed in exalted station. She was a queen amongst women and would have been an empress among queens.

She was a woman of great intellectual power. Her knowledge of several languages with their literatures, of music, painting and sculpture, of geology and botany, was critical, broad and deep. Independently of her great attainments in literature, art and science, Mrs. Johnson was a practical business woman. Since her husband's death several years ago the care of vast and complicated business interests had devolved upon her shoulders. In the management of her large estate Mrs. Johnson displayed an energy, shrewdness and ability that astonished the keenest business men of the day. She could discuss with the most astute broker of the metropolis the value of city and country property. She could converse brilliantly on the beauties of English literature and analyze with strong mental grasp and incisive speech the intricacies of German metaphysics and the niceties of French philosophy.

She had traveled extensively and intelligently with the eye of a poet and of an artist. She had seen many things in nature sublime and beautiful.—With the eye of an observer and the mind of a thinker she had seen, studied and understood men and women under curious and widely different conditions.

The ordinary conversation of this intellectual, cultured, graceful creature was instructive, charming and fascinating beyond description. She exercised an extraordinary magnetic influence over all persons with whom she held even the most casual relations.

Mrs. Johnson was not fond of society. She lived almost alone with her books, her pictures, her lofty aspirations and her charitable sympathies. Hence she was not as well-known as she deserved to be. She had a scorn—quiet, but strong and deep—for show, for sham, and for commonplace she "had food to eat which society knew not of." A character so exalted, so vigorous and so various was more readily misunderstood than justly estimated. She lived and died almost unknown and unappreciated even by many of those immediately around her. Nevertheless when the sad news of her death was published some few felt that a queen woman had passed. Some there were who knew that "take her all in all we shall not see her like again."

Perhaps Mrs. Johnson will be best remembered as she was most widely known, rather for her qualities of heart than for her gifts and attainments of mind. She was the very quality of mercy, of compassion and of sympathy incarnate. Her sympathy was bounded only by the universe. She loved her own kind. She sympathized with all animal and vegetable life. She loved with an intelligent and an exquisite love everything beautiful and all creation was beautiful in the eyes and touching to the heart of this genuine child of Nature.

She dispensed immense sums of money quietly and secretly to deserving persons, irrespective of race or religion; she patronized liberally painters and musicians; she encouraged individual industry, and was ever ready to contribute generously to any great public enterprize. She founded a great educational seminary and endowed a free hospital. She had a long list of persons to whom her agent for years had been instructed to remit monthly allowances. Her sole object in life was to make others happy. She never thought of herself. Though her own health was never good, she was continually interesting herself about the physical welfare of others.

On her death bed she wrote with trembling hand a list of articles which she ordered to be sent to a distressed family living in her neighborhood.

One of the best proofs of this lady's extraordinary character was seen in the heroic devotion of her servants. It is not too much to say that several members of her household would have cheerfully taken Mrs. Johnson's place on that death bed at Buena Vista if by so doing the life of their sweet and beloved mistress could have been saved or even considerably prolonged.

From the moment that her illness assumed a serious aspect Mrs. Johnson prayed to Jesus, Mary and Joseph for the grace of resignation. Those who witnessed the closing scenes must have been convinced that the touching petition was granted.

She sleeps in Oakland! the city of the sunshine and the flowers she so tenderly loved. The tears of the sick and the strong, of the poor and the rich, of the rude and the cultured, of the weak and the powerful, water her grave.

May the sun shine all day and the moon sleep all night upon that grave. May the first daisy of Spring and the last rose of Summer bloom among the grasses that cover her clay. May the softest breeze that blows from the western sea kiss the cold stone above her head. Nay, may the Winter wind itself, that elsewhere shrieks and screams, sing a soft lullaby around the spot where the Angels have rocked her to sleep! May the God who giveth every perfect gift, who giveth His beloved sleep, grant her eternal rest and peace, and may the everlasting light of glory shine upon her in the kingdom of Jesus and Mary and Joseph.

Board of Supervisors.

WEDNESDAY, December 6th.

The District Attorney was instructed to institute proceedings to procure the right of way for the private road petitioned for by John Colson, in the Healdsburg road district, in accordance with a resolution passed August 10th.

Contracts for furnishing supplies for the County Farm and Hospital were awarded as follows: For meat, Noonan & Towey; groceries, E. A. Wilson, Geo. F. King, Grace Bros.

THURSDAY, December 7th.

The following motion was adopted: In the matter of the change in the county road near Glen Ellen, Sonoma Township, Sonoma county, California, on the farm of George Clark, as petitioned for by C. H. W. Brunning and others, I move that the petition be received and placed on file and that Preston Davis, County Surveyor, and Chas. Wilson and J. E. Kearney be and are hereby appointed to lay out, view and survey said change and report to this Board. So ordered.

In the matter of a jail at Bloomfield, motion by Supervisor Sales. On reading and considering the petition in the above matter, I move that said petition be and the same is hereby denied on the ground that the Board of Supervisors have no jurisdiction of the subject matter. So ordered.

Public road as petitioned for by Fritzpatrick, et al. Motion by Supervisor Joost. In reference to the order of this Board of July 14, 1893, in establishing a public road on the petition of A. Fritzpatrick, et al., over the land of McQuade in Bodega road district, Sonoma county, California, and this Board having caused to be set apart for said McQuade in the County Treasury the sum of $65 in payment for damages assessed in said matter, and the said McQuade having refused to accept the same within the time prescribed, I therefore move that the District Attorney of Sonoma county be and is hereby instructed to institute proceedings against the said McQuade to secure the right of way under and as provided in title seven, part three of the code of civil procedure. So ordered.

Then the Midwinter Fair appropriation question came up again. This time a resolution from the County Midwinter Fair Association asking for an appropriation revived the matter. Mr. Joost, with the consent of his second, withdrew the motion he made at the last meeting in regard to an appropriation.

Mr. Joost offered the following motion, which was seconded by Mr. Hall: "Inasmuch as a petition from the Executive Committee of the Sonoma Midwinter Fair Association has been presented to the Board requesting an appropriation to be made in assisting to make a suitable exhibit by Sonoma county at the California Midwinter Exposition to be held in San Francisco, and believing a majority of the people of Sonoma county are in favor of such appropriation, I therefore move that when the people of Sonoma county have contributed the sum of $4,000 in their behalf, then this Board will appropriate the sum of $1,000 from the General Fund of said county, to be placed in the hands of the Executive Committee of the Sonoma County Midwinter Fair Association to aid in advertising the resources of Sonoma county and encourage immigration.

The roll call on the motion showed ayes, Sales, Joost, Hall and Thompson; no, Meade.

HEART DISEASE 30 YEARS.

GRAND ISLAND, NEB., April 8th, 1892.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

GENTLEMEN: I had been troubled with HEART DISEASE FOR THE LAST 30 YEARS, and although I was treated by able physicians and tried many remedies, I grew steadily worse until I WAS COMPLETELY PROSTRATED AND CONFINED TO MY BED WITHOUT ANY HOPE OF RECOVERY. I would have very bad sinking spells, when my pulse would stop beating altogether, and it was with the greatest difficulty that my circulation could be started, which would bring me back to consciousness again. While in this condition I tried your NEW HEART CURE, and began to improve from the first, and now I am able to do a good day's work for a man 68 years of age. I give DR. MILES' NEW HEART CURE all the credit for my recovery. It is over six months since I have taken any, although I keep a bottle in the house in case I should need it. I have also used your NERVE AND LIVER PILLS, and think a great deal of them. Z. AVERY.

Henri Baron, the well-known French artist, who had a studio in this place for several years, died very suddenly in Santa Cruz last Wednesday of apoplexy. The deceased was a graduate of the Beaux Arts School, Paris, and was a painter of ability. He was generous to a fault and died a poor man, although his talent earned him thousands of dollars. He was a native of France and aged forty-seven years. He leaves a widow residing in Santa Cruz.

Geo. W. Martin, son of Mrs. Jas. Martin, died in San Francisco last Wednesday morning, after a lingering illness, of consumption. The deceased was aged twenty-six years and eight months, and was born and raised in Sonoma, where he lived up to a few years ago. He was an ex-member of the Sonoma Valley Band and also of Sonoma Parlor, No. 111, N. S. G. W., and was universally liked and esteemed in this valley, where he was best known. The remains were brought to this place for interment yesterday morning and laid to rest beside those of his father, the late Jas. Martin, in Mountain Cemetery. The funeral, which took place from the Congregational Church, was attended by the Native Sons in regalia, the Sonoma Valley Band in uniform and a large concourse of relatives and friends.

The following closing exercises were rendered by the scholars of the Watmaugh school district on November 29th, at which a large number of visitors were present: Song, "Gay and Happy," School; salutatory speech, Louis Rogers; Thanksgiving Proclamation, Sadie I. Agnew; recitation, "God is Great and Good," Mary Laveruni; dialogue, "Who Made All Things," Sadie, Blossie, Tillie, Arnold and Mary; recitation, "A Child May be Useful," Freddie Riebli; reading, Vicky Laveruni; recitation, "The World," Tillie Kiser; reading, "Where Sugar Comes From," Louis Rogers; song, "I'll Paddle My Own Canoe," School; recitation, "Small Service is True Service," Tony Laveruni; reading, "Where Tea Comes From," Katie Riebli; recitation, "For Thanksgiving," Arnold Riebli; "Watmaugh Chronicle," M. Kraft; dialogue, "The Months," School; recitation, "A Harvest Song," Blossie Keechler; reading, "I can't," Tillie Kiser; recitation, "A Child's Thought of Harvest," Louis Rogers; reading, "Onward and Upward," Blossie Keechler; recitation, "Thanksgiving," Katie Riebli; recitation, "Grand Old Day," Sadie Agnew; Farewell Address, Tillie Kiser; song, "Vacation," School.

The Sonoma House, Harry Fisheer proprietor, is a popular resort for commercial travelers. *

A SCHELLVILLE BOY GOES WRONG.

He Has a Fondness for Pie and Jam Robs His Benefactor of $2200.

Adrien Ten Bosch, an ex-pupil of Locost Grove boarding school, and ex-editor of the "Schellville Ray," an amateur sheet 4 x 6 in size, has disappeared and his whereabouts at present are unknown.

The youngster, who is between eighteen and twenty years of age, entered the Locost Grove school as a pupil several years ago, where he remained until Dr. F. J. Lane of San Francisco took a fancy to him and installed him in his dental office in that city as an apprentice. The boy, shortly after becoming installed into the doctor's office, became the companion of a number of young "bloods," and has led a very wild life ever since. He seemed to be getting along all right, so the confiding dentist thought, and he paid little attention to him.

On Thanksgiving eve the doctor gave the young rapscallion a sum of money to pay his grocery account and a small account at a fruit store. He then came up to Sonoma duck shooting, telling Ten Bosh he would return the following Monday. Upon his return the young ingrate had disappeared and has never been seen to this day. In place of Ten Bosch, however, he found a note from one of the city bank's informing him that his account was overdrawn. He repaired to the bank and found that he had been robbed by his protege. No deposits had been made for some time and his account was well overdrawn. Of course Adrien Ten Bosch's absence was now accounted for, and the doctor began a quiet search for the boy, notifying the police at the same time. The doctor failed to find the boy but he found traces of him—oh, yes, plenty of traces, and all in the shape of unpaid bills. Besides, he had made numerous collections from the doctor's patients, none of which had been accounted for to the doctor.

Dr. Lane found upon investigating that after he left for this place the day before Thanksgiving, the youngster had been reveling in jam, sweet meats, pie, etc., at his expense with the money he had gave him to pay the grocery account with. Then he had gone to the fruit store at the opposite corner and bought and charged to the dentist's account a lot of oranges and expensive fruits. Since then many little bills have been coming in to Dr. Lane for items of account which he imagined had been paid long ago. All in all, considering the sums withheld from deposit at the bank, bills unpaid and unauthorized accounts, with collections unaccounted for, the doctor finds that the good little boy from the country got away with about $2,200, but the unpaid bills are still coming in.

Closing Exercises of the Glen Ellen School.

Our public school closed its Fall term last Friday. Much praise is due Miss Lillian Claypool, the teacher, for the great improvement and advancement of the pupils and for the interest taken in their studies. The following programme was successfully carried out and was very creditable to the school: Greeting song, School; reading, "The Boy and the Spectacles," Maud Miner; recitation, "The Two Blacksmiths," Julia Sullivan; song, "The Little Workers," Pearl Allen, Maggie Beatty, John and Angelo Bocca; recitation, "A Letter to Santa Claus," May Monahan; dialogue, "Lenora's Dream," Helen Wright, Ella Monahan, Nellie Gordenker and Josephine Wright; recitation, "Two Words," Gussie Wright; song, "Over the River and Through the Woods," Freda Eheleben; recitation, "My Little Dog," Amy Poppe; song, "Gypsy Jane," Maud Miner; recitation, "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star," Edna Poppe; "Song of the Rose," School; recitation, "Little Chatterbox," Freda Eheleben; dialogue, "Kittie and Minnie," Maggie Beatty and Pearl Allen; recitation, "My Mother," Florence Monahan; speech, Milton Sobbe; reading, "Why Minnie Couldn't Sleep," Malvina Martens; song, "Red Tops in the Clover," Freda Eheleben; instrumental solo, Pearl Allen; recitation, "Flipperty School," Gussie Wright; song, "Wintry Storms," School; "Christmas Gifts," Helen Wright and Nellie Gordenker; speech, Edgar Downing; recitation, "Blindman's Bluff," Pearl Allen; "Good Bye," Pearl Allen, Edgar Downing, Ella Monahan, Freda Eheleben, Helen and Josephine Wright and Nellie Gordenker; "Farewell Song," School.

Death of Eugenie Lounibos.

Miss Eugenie Lounibos, daughter of John Lounibos, of Madrone Vineyards, died at her home on Thursday night last at 10 o'clock. This is a sad berevement to the family as it is only a few weeks ago that Mrs. Lounibos was stricken down by the icy hand of death.

THE LADIES' CARNIVAL.

A Great Success—Two Hundred and Forty Dollars Raised for Sonoma's Midwinter Fair Exhibit.

The Midwinter Fair Carnival, which was held for three evenings last week in the City Pavilion, was in every way a success, notwithstanding the short time the ladies had for getting it up. After the booths had been given out to the different ladies, each and every one set to work to make the large pavilion look bright and attractive.

The American booth was located in the center of the building and was handsomely and elaborately draped in large American flags and bunting set off with palms and pampas plumes. This booth was a most imposing one, from which was sold ice cream and cake.

To the right of the stage was the French booth, made beautiful by evergreens, bunting and a number of French flags. Candy, fruit salads, popcorn and cigars were served by pretty girls in neat costumes.

Adjoining this was the Japanese booth, which was decorated with lanterns, fans, screens and rugs. Under a very large parasol tea was served by young ladies dressed in Japanese costumes.

Next in order was the English booth. Here the English colors were brought out in elaborate style, and broad stripes of red, white and blue were entwined around the pillars in front of this booth and dainties dear to the hearts of the English people were serveed.

The Irish booth was prettily trimmed with green bunting and trailing vines. In this booth toys, perfumery and fancy articles were sold.

In the German booth stood a large Christmas tree, which was beautifully trimmed with pretty things for Christmas. In this booth was sold coffee, chicken and tongue sandwiches and salads.

At the Spanish booth tomales, cigars, cigarettes and oranges were sold. This booth was beautifully decorated with Spanish flags and red silk curtains.

The Italian booth was made attractive by bright colored bunting, flags and pictures. Here the highly seasoned good things of that country were eaten.

Next came the Swiss booth, which was handsomely draped with white lace curtains and red bunting, surmounted by the Swiss flag. At this booth was sold Sonoma wine, soda water and sarsaparilla.

To the left of the main entrance was a Gypsy tent occupying the center of a miniature forest of tall redwood trees through which flittered the Gypsy girls, who ever and anon sang soft, plaintive songs to the accompaniment of the guitar. In the tent fortunes were told by the Queen.

The stage had been enlarged and beautifully draped and trimmed by Miss Sadie McHarvey and Mrs. J. P. Weems. Both ladies displayed much taste as decorateurs.

A fine concert by the Sonoma Valley Band was a prominent feature of Thursday evening's entertainment, and the beautiful music rendered was repeatedly applauded.

For Friday evening Mrs. Weems had arranged a miscellaneous and entertaining programme. The first number was a vocal solo by Miss N. Haraszthy. This was followed by a comic recitation by Miss Claire Hope, after which "A Silent Woman," a farce in one act, was presented.

The Saturday matinee was attended by a large concourse of ladies and children, who watched with pleasure the several drills and songs in which the school children participated. Especially interesting was the rope drill, in which six little girls took part, each dressed in pretty Turkish trowsers of different colors.

Among the many things to interest the little ones was a Punch and Judy show, managed by Master Walter Shot of San Francisco.

The lunch spread by the ladies of the Eastern Star was well patronized and helped swell the profits of the Carnival. Although many went with the intention of sitting down to one of the fine dinners for which those ladies are noted, they were disappointed as it had been arranged that only a lunch would be served to be donated by the general public.

Saturday evening crowds of people filled the large pavilion, many coming on the train from the metropolis. Another concert was given by the Sonoma Valley Band which was interspersed with songs and recitations, after which dancing commenced and continued until 12 o'clock, when the music ceased and the audience dispersed.

The Carnival was great a success. Although the expenses were quite heavy still the ladies will net in round numbers $240.

Coughs and colds kept off by taking Simmons Liver Regulator to regulate the system.

MRS. ROBERT C. JOHNSON'S WILL.

A Number of Sonoma People Remembered.

The will of Mrs. Robert C. Johnson, who died near this place last week, was filed for probate in San Francisco last Saturday.

The instrument, which was executed on January 10th, 1892, and was witnessed by T. B. Berry, a real estate man of San Rafael, and M. Taylor, son of Attorney J. M. Taylor of Oakland, disposes of an estate valued at $2,000,000, consisting of real estate yielding a monthly rental of $4,500, stocks, bonds and notes valued at $60,000, yielding an annual revenue of $4,000; furniture, jewlery, works of art and live-stock valued at $40,000, and $2,970 in bank.

The disposition of this immense property marks both the broad-minded and minute generosity of the late Mrs. Johnson. She was noted for her charities in life, but by the law was enjoined from bequeathing more than one-third of the estate to charity.

The chief munificent bequest consists of the decedent's city real estate and art treasures, together with money, making up in all one-third of the estate, to Archbishop Riordan, in trust for the foundation and endowment of a free hospital to be erected in San Francisco.

Thereafter follow handsome legacies to relatives and a long list of friends, the residue of the estate being devised to the living sisters and brother of the testatrix and to the heirs of her deceased sister and brothers.

In the list of kindly bequests a number of dependents are handsomely remembered. Among these are servants or former servants, including Annie Goold, Mary and Annie Gill, John Burke, two Japanese domestics, John Gottenburg, John and Maggie Kusel. Helen Shallard, a maiden school teacher, comes in for a substantial sum. Joseph Schorr is given a legacy contingent on his adherence to a certain agreement, understood to be a temperance pledge. Each of the servants in the employ of the decedent at the time of her death, twelve in number, is given $100.

Father John J. Pendergast, Jas. Taylor and Benjamin Bangs are nominated executors with complete authority to realize on the property and a request that they close the estate within five years after the death of the testatrix. Father Pendergast and Attorney J. M. Taylor have declined to serve, and Mr. Bangs has petitioned the Probate Court to be appointed executor without bonds.

The following residents of of Sonoma receive legacies under the will: Joseph Schorr, $5,000; Rev. Father Brennan, ex-pastor of St. Francis' Church, $3,000; Ida Johnson, adopted daughter of Mrs. Johnson, $6,000; John Burke, Sr., $1,000; John Gottenburg, $1,000; Sonoma Presentation Convent, $5,000.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A Unique Family.

Dr. A. E. Osborne, Superintendent of the Home for Feeble Minded, has issued the following touching appeal to the general public.

"Up in the Sonoma hills there is a unique family to whom once every year the good people of the State open their hearts and their pocket books. These little folks have come to their mountain home from all parts of the State, in the hope that a terrible affliction—that of a clouded and darkened mind—may, by the magic of humane care and professional skill, be banished from them forever. With some this hope will be realized, but most of them must look to Eternity for the cure. And yet they are happy, in the sense that children are happy, because of their abiding innocence. In this home there is, to many, a strange commingling of dwarfed statures, immatured features, eyes lighted by flickering intelligence, unsteady gaits and incongruous sights and sounds. The members of this family, however, see no sadness in these things, for many willing hands are ever busily engaged in making the rough places smooth for them, and all crocked ways straight. So far as it is possible to do so their childish whims and desires are responded to and in such a manner as to serve, through the operations of the senses, as a species of education whereby they may be rendered not only happy and confortable, but progressive, self-reliant and intelligent. Have you seen them? If not you are cordially invited to visit them in their picturesque home, and observe for yourself how mental reformation may be accomplished. One thing that they share in common with other children is the glorious festival of Christmas tide. They have the same longings often intensified by some mental "twist" for toys, games, candy, picture books, dolls and the rest that go to make up the armamentarium of old Santa Claus. Their gratification, however, in these lines depends soley upon the liberality of the public. Have you contributed to their Christmas cheer? The object of this circular is to kindly say that the opportunity to do so is offered you and that we will feel honored by any contribution, however slight, that it may be within your power, or within your convenience to make to their fund this year. There are three hundred of them. Their postoffice and express address is 'Glen Ellen, Sonoma county, California.' See enclosed address card. We need say no more; we have introduced them. Will you do the rest."

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, DEC. 16, 1893.

THE ILL FATED EVENING STAR.

One of the Most Pathetic Tragedies of the Atlantic Coast.

One of the most terrible tragedies of the Atlantic coast was the loss of the steamship Evening Star with 260 of her passengers and crew 240 miles northeast of the Matanila reef, on Oct. 3, 1866. The Evening Star was on her way from New York to New Orleans and was rolled about for a long time in a constantly increasing storm. At 1 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 3 a vast mountain of water fell on the deck and stove in the starboard forward gangway. A bulkhead was hurriedly erected to keep the water out, but it was swept away. Four times the crew rebuilt the bulkhead, only to see the waves tear it away. The rudder was thrown out of gear, and the sea made a clean breach over the ship.

Men and women alike helped to bail the water out of the vessel, but the sea poured in irresistibly. The captain told the passengers that there was little hope left, but urged them to be cool. Among the passengers were the members of a French opera company, and the prima donna worked at the buckets like the rest.

Just about dawn the captain solemnly addressed the crew and passengers. He told them that the ship must go down. Men and women rushed about the deck yelling, tearing their clothes off and plunging into the seething sea. There were several lifeboats, but they could not be lowered in such waves. So the boats remained on the deck and were loaded with people, who waited for the Evening Star to sink. The captain wept and bade farewell to his companions. The crew maintained good discipline. In an hour the ship gave a lurch and plunged down into the ocean. The crowded lifeboats were sucked under, and the sea was full of men and women calling in vain for help. Scores of them were crushed into shapeless masses by the driftwood that swirled around the wreck. The last person to leave the ship before she sank was an Italian prima donna, who waited calmly until all hope was gone, and when she felt the first convulsion of the vessel as it prepared to go down she raised her hands, moved her lips as if in prayer and plunged into the roaring waters, never to be seen again.

Only a few were saved. They drifted around without food or drink, half mad with fear, until they were picked up.—New York Herald.

How to Shoot a Rattler.

The writer saw an Indian kill a rattlesnake in a very peculiar manner recently. The rattler was about 10 feet from the Indian, who was resting the rifle on his knee, apparently taking aim.

Whenever he moved the weapon a few inches, the snake would move around and get exactly in line with it. Then, to show how the thing was done, the Indian moved about the snake in a circle, and the reptile moved as if his tail were a pivot, always keeping his head and body in line with the gun. The Indian then agreed to bandage his eyes and shoot the snake in the mouth.

The writer bandaged the Indian's eyes, and, holding the gun by his side at arm's length, the latter pulled the trigger, and the ball entered the snake's mouth and passed the whole length of his body.

"How did you take aim?" was the query.

"The snake he take aim," was the reply.

We have talked with an old hunter on this proposition, and he claims that a rattlesnake will always range directly in line with a gun or stick pointed at it.—Carson Appeal.

A Visit From the Bayleys.

The servant at No. 1 told the servant at No. 2 that her master expected his old friends, the Bayleys, to pay a visit, and No. 2 told No. 3 that No. 1 expected to have the Bayleys in the house every day, and No. 3 told No. 4 that it was all up with No. 1 and that they couldn't keep the bailiffs out, whereupon No. 4 told No. 5 that the officers were after No. 1, and that it was as much as he could do to prevent himself from being taken in execution, and that it was nearly killing his poor, dear wife, and so it went on increasing and increasing until it got to No. 33 that the detective police had taken up the gentleman who lived at No. 1 for killing his poor, dear wife with arsenic, and that it was confidently hoped and expected that he would be executed at Horsemonger Lane jail, as the facts of the care were very clear against him.—London Tit-Bits.

Inherited.

The small boy who applied to the Chicago physician to be vaccinated was so bright faced the doctor asked him who he was.

"I'm Johnny Smith," he said, "and my pop's a detective."

"Oh," exclaimed the doctor, "run along, little boy! There's no need to vaccinate you. You'll never catch anything."—Detroit Free Press.

Precedence.

"Don't you know, sir, that it is impolite to swear before a lady?" The Irishman looked dazed for a moment and then replied: "Sure, mum, I beg yer pardon. But Oi didn't know ye wanted to shwear first."—Havre de Grace (Md.) Republican.

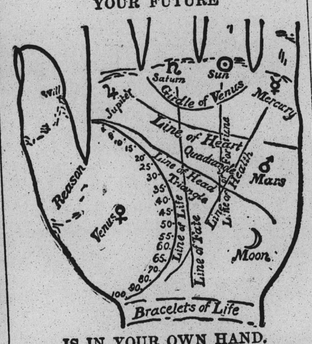
YOUR FUTURE



IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness: a straight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined LINE OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many stories to interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the GIRDLE OF VENUS well marked; keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1894 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 17x22 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $30.00; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations and subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2.00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send for a specimen copy. A large QUADRANGLE means honesty; a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasoning faculty. The MOUNT OF JUPITER betokens ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the last and most valuable quality.

ALAMEDA, COL., Jan., 93. XII

My wife was troubled with nervousness about one year before she took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and at that time had very severe attacks of spasm, convulsion, and pains in different parts of the body; when in this state her lower jaws would act violently and set sometimes, bite her tongue, breathe heavily, then short, then seemed to stop entirely, get a wild look in her eyes and rolling around, then stop sometimes; it would take two men to hold her in bed, otherwise her body would cramp and be so for two hours. She took but two bottles of the Nerve Tonic, which cured her entirely of all these torments, which myself and wife gladly testify. It truly had the desired effect D. S. M'GILLIS.

Mrs. Ester Devilbiss, 354 S. Tenth street, San Jose, Cal., writes, October 1893: Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic has indeed done wonders in my part of the country. There has been bought in my neighborhood over $75 worth.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly Sweenied; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or. S. Z. PAXTON.

OUR NEW 1893 FLOWER SEED OFFER.

A Magnificent Collection of FLOWER SEEDS 200 Varieties, FREE!

An Unparalleled Offer by an Old-Established and Reliable Publishing House! The Ladies' World is a large 16-page 50-column illustrated Magazine for ladies and the family circle. It is devoted to stories, poems, ladies' fancy work, artistic needlework, home decoration, housekeeping, fashions, hygiene, juvenile matters, etiquette, etc. To introduce this charming ladies' paper into 100,000 homes where it is not already taken, we now make the following extraordinary offer: Upon receipt of only 12 Cents in silver or stamps, we will send The Ladies' World for Three Months on trial, and to each subscriber we will also send Free and postpaid, a large and magnificent Collection of Choice Flower Seeds, two hundred varieties, including Pansies, Verbenas, Chrysanthemums, Asters, Phlox Drummondii, Balsam, Cypress Vine, Stocks, Dianthus, Double Zinnia, Pinks, etc., etc. Remember, twelve cents pays for the magazine three months and this entire magnificent Collection of Choice Flower Seeds, put up by a first-class Seed House, and warranted fresh and reliable. No lady can afford to miss this wonderful opportunity. We guarantee every subscriber many times the value of money sent, and will refund your money and make a present of both seeds and Magazine to any one not satisfied. Ours is an old and reliable publishing house, endorsed by all the leading newspapers. We have received hundreds of testimonials like the following, which is but one of many: "I had beautiful flowers from seeds during the past five years, and from expensive florists' packages, and have never seen any to equal those from your collection." Mrs. Henry Bird, Peru, Ind. "I am greatly pleased with the seeds and the Ladies' World. They are equally as good as those I have paid from 25 cents to $1.00 per package for
